JEWS AND THE PEERAGE

BY RABBI FERDINAND M. ISSERMAN

Shortly after Sir Alfred Mond, now Lord Melchett, had been raised to the peerage, an Anglo-Jewish writer wrote an article on titled British Jews. We cannot recall all the details of his article, but if feeble memory fails us not too much, amongst British Jews the badge of nobility has been followed by a transfer from Judaism, so that of all the Jews who have been made peers in England, the descendants of only one have remained in the faith of the fathers. Aristocracy has not agreed with Judaism. The children of Jewish nobility have accepted the dominant faith. The present generation is running true to form. Lord Melchett's (Sir Alfred Mond) daughter married Viscount Erleigh, the son of the Marquis of Reading, in a church and we believe both were listed as Christians.

What is true in England is also true in the United States. There there are no titles formally bestowed, but still there are four hundreds. Just as the title in England frequently is awarded for financial success, so is membership in the four hundred awarded in the States. Religious dissent is not tolerated by four hundreds. Thus the granddaughter of Jacob Schiff leaves the faith of her grandfather, and Otto Kahn, first declares to the press that he is a Jew, though not an observant one, and shortly thereafter it leaks out that his daughter is listed as a Protestant. Other of our rich coreligionists in New York in order to enable their children to enter fashionable schools join fashionable churches. In other words material and social success fills the children of Israel with the passion to consort with the social aristocracy, and they conform even to the religious attitudes of these aristocracies.

We have all the respect in the world for a man who convinced of spiritual or intellectual inadequacy of his faith abjures it for another. We cannot quarrel with a man who leaves the religion of his fathers because he cannot accept its most vital tenets. But this was not the case with our Anglo-Jewish or American-Jewish aristocrats. They surrendered Judaism for social reasons. Is it that their struggle for material success had stifled in them certain spiritual values—had coarsened and brutalized them? Or is it that the flesh of success had intoxicated them so that they reeled in their stupor away from the faith of Israel. Judaism with its clashing tendencies, its mysticism and rationalism, its legalism and prophetism, its poetry and its reality, offers avenues for varieties of religious expression. Our Jewish aristocrats who have left us could not have done so on religious grounds. Meanwhile it does seem as if the elevation to the peerage of a Jew is tantamount to his departure from the faith. There are some pet coreligionists of ours whom we should like to nominate for the peerage—Can you our reader add to our list?

WHAT FANNY ROSENFELD SYMBOLIZES

We were on the platform at Sunnyside when the City of Toronto greeted its Olympic athletes. We were delighted that among them was a Jewess, who stood out not only as the world's greatest all-round woman athlete, but who also had endeared herself to her team mates for spiritual as well as for physical virtues. Fanny's sportsmanship

THE REIGN OF CHIEF CONSTABLES

The suggestion made at the conference of Canadian chief constables to have all aliens in Canada registered and their finger prints taken is not likely to meet with public approval. The underlying assumption is that all aliens are potentially criminal, and that keeping them under surveillance, is a matter of precaution which time is sure to justify. While the tendency among provincial Americans is to view all people of trans-Atlantic origin with suspicion it will be readily evident to them that it is unsafe to permit the operation of the principle that people are guilty before they commit any wrong. Admitting for the sake of argument that aliens produce proportionately a greater number of criminals than the natives, then the difference is at best only a matter of degree. The question will then arise as to what percentage of criminals is necessary to taint an entire class. The natives everywhere furnish a certain percentage of criminals. Why—following the reasoning applied to aliens—should it not be still safer to register all people and take their finger prints on the chance that the criminal tendency manifested in some might become characteristic of all of them? Or take another instance: the City of Chicago is known to suffer more from lawlessness than any other city in America. Overlook for a moment the fact that Chicago has a much smaller percentage of aliens than New York, and at the same time a larger proportion of criminals. Will it not be wise in accordance with police logic to place Chicago—as far as criminality is concerned—in the same category with the aliens? By parity of reasoning it might be suggested that the entire population of Chicago should be registered and finger-printed! Undoubtedly, if this were done, it would be much easier to check the crime waves in Chicago than it is at present. But it is presumable that the chief of police himself would be the first one to object to having his finger prints taken as an example to the community.

We can sympathize with the police constables in their difficulty in trying to protect the honest population against law-breakers. But police methods are harsh enough when applied to unfortunate individuals against whom there is some shadow of suspicion. But it is unthinkable that the legal tradition of a country should be set aside and the lawlessness of police tyranny installed in their place. Once you start tampering with the principle that a man is innocent until he is proven guilty, and you will find personal liberty in danger.

One of the unfortunate legacies of the war is the proneness to overgeneralize with regard to the character of peoples. During the war each camp found it necessary to establish that the other side was essentially and generically evil. To the Germans the French were a degenerate people. The Allies put the entire German nation down as a collection of monsters. Some people went further and broadened their characterizations to fit entire races. Thus we have the myth that the Nordic race as a whole has certain characteristics which place it on a plane superior to that of other races. It is a convenient simplification of life to speak of broad lines and universal features. In America popular thinking has fallen prey to the idea that humanity is divisible into two main classes: American, and non-American, or

WEDDINGS

Starkoff- -Arshinoff

The marriage of Miss Jennie Arshinoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Arshinoff, to Joseph Starkoff, son of Mrs. S. Starkoff, was solemnized Sunday, August 26, at Annex Hall, Rabbi Herschorn officiating. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a bouffant dress of white satin trimmed with insertions of lace and rhinestones. The scalloped skirt was edged with pearls and the long tight sleeves were of satin. Her veil of tulle and lace was in Spanish style with orange blossoms on either side. She carried a prayer book with a shower of lilies-of-the-valley. Mrs. L. Arshinoff, the matron of honour, wore a period gown of golden reed colour, trimmed with lace, with a hat and shoes to match. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and sweet peas. L. Arshinoff was best man. The bridesmaids were Misses Sarah Starkoff, in a maize georgette bouffante dress: Ida Starkoff, blue georgette: Jackie Schneider, flesh taffeta period dress: Pearl Brown, a flesh satin bouffant dress beaded on one side; Rose Rosenberg, fawn lace dress trimmed with rose flowers; and Tilly Libman, bouffante dress of pale blue satin. They all wore hats to match their dresses and carried pale pink roses. The flower girls were Erma Engel, in pink georgette, and Sheila Verbitsky, in green georgette. Beatrice Verbitsky, in maize georgette, was train-bearer. They all wore rosebuds in their hair. Martin Arshinoff, the page boy, wore a Lord Fauntleroy suit and hat. Mrs. Arshinoff, mother of the bride, wore an all-over black lace dress trimmed with satin. Mrs. Starkoff, mother of the groom, wore a black satin dress: both with corsages of American Beauties. A reception was held for 300 guests. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. B. Kuzon and daughter, Florence, of Springfield, Mass.; Oscar Arshinoff, of Springfield; Mr. and Mrs. B. Verbitsky and Miss Gertrude Verbitsky, of Riviere du Loup; Mr. and Mrs. I. Rother, Mr. and Mrs. G. Rother, of La Prairie. Mr. and Mrs. Starkoff have taken the Saguenay boat trip and will live at 358 St. Joseph Boulevard.

KINDERGARTEN OPENS

The kindergarten class of the Peoples' Schools starts the beginning of September; registration begins September 3. Children between the ages of 4½ and 6, who have had no previous school training at all will be accepted. Children are taught the rudiments of the Hebrew and Yiddish languages through the medium of different kindergarten occupations. They also receive instruction in English, preparing them for their first year work. The board of the schools has arranged with a bus to bring and take home the children who live any distance away from the school, at 5201 Waverly Street. The kindergarten of last term consisted of twenty-three pupils, most of whom have completed their kindergarten course and are about to enter the first year of the combined English and Jewish course which will open also on the same date in the same school. This class will follow the same course of study given in the first year of the schools of the Protestant Board and the regular course of the Jewish studies of the Folk Shule. The class will be conducted by teachers, under the supervision of the principal of the schools, S. Wiseman.

Florence Vidor, Movie Star, Bride of Jascha Heifetz

Jascha Heifetz, violinist, married Florence Vidor, motion picture actress, Monday before last. He broke the news to his manager, George Engles, just before he and his bride left on the Lake Shore Limited for California.

"It was very quiet," the violinist remarked when he saw his manager's astonishment.

"It must have been!" said Mr. Engles. The ceremony was performed by former Supreme Court Justice Kelby, in the presence of Supreme Court Justice Frankenthaler, in the Mayfair House, at 65th Street and Park Avenue.

Heifetz is twenty-seven, Miss Vidor thirty-three. It is his first marriage. She was the wife of King Vidor, motion picture director, who made "The Big Parade," and who now is wed to Eleanor Boardman, screen actress. She has a nine-year-old daughter, Suzanne.

Miss Vidor divorced her first husband in 1925 in California, submitting to the court that too much talent in one family led to "submergence of individuality" and interfered with the careers of both.

There had been rumors for several months that Heifetz and Miss Vidor intended to marry. They went to Europe on the steamship "Paris," May 12, and when Miss Vidor at that time was asked about the rumors she said there was nothing to them and professed to be astonished that they happened to book passage on the same ship. They returned to the United States August 15 on the "Ile de France," and when again confronted with marriage reports neither would say "No."

Miss Vidor will work on a new picture in California and her husband must leave for Europe in October to fill concert engagements. He will start an American concert tour January 5, according to Mr. Engles. It is not contemplated that Miss Vidor will go with him to Europe.

The secrecy of their marriage was a reminder of the secrecy Heifetz caused to surround an operation he underwent in Mount Sinai Hospital. News of his marriage came out yesterday, two years to a day after the news that he had been operated on for appendicitis under the name of John Smith.

He is generally regarded in the music world as the greatest technical master of the violin, and his enthusiasts regard him as the world's greatest violinist. His career has been sensational. He was marked for greatness from childhood. Born poor in a Russian-Jewish family in Russia, he became a pupil of Prof. Leopold Auer, who taught Mischa Elman, Efrem Zimbalist and other famous violinists.

His first appearance in the United States was in Carnegie Hall on the afternoon of October 27, 1917, when he was sixteen. He was acclaimed immediately. A critic, writing in the New York "World," said he was the superior of any fiddler heard in the United States in fifteen years.

Miss Vidor is with Paramount and has appeared in many of its recent pictures.

Dr. H. M. Kallen Accused After Sacco Speech

Dr. Horace Meyer Kallen, a well-known instructor of philosophy, with degrees from many universities here and abroad and widely read writer, is being sought by the Boston police on a warrant charging blasphemy. The charge was brought as a result of an address by Dr. Kallen Thursday night at the scenic auditorium, in Berkeley Street, during the Sacco-Vanzetti memorial meeting.

Dr. Kallen was at one time connected with Harvard University as a lecturer in philosophy and won distinction as the star pupil and literary executor of William Jones, noted philosopher. Dr. Kallen is at present attached to the staff of the New School of Social Research of New York City.

Police obtained the warrant to-day and their first calls were made at several places in the North End. Later they reported "no service." The warrant was obtained in the usual course of police work. Dr. Kallen will be arrested if found in this state. Whether the New York police will be asked to hold him if he can be found there has not been determined. The police have the address of Dr. Kallen as No. 465 West 23rd Street, New York City.

The police quote Dr. Kallen as saying that if "Sacco and Vanzetti were anarchists, so was Jesus Christ, Socrates" and several others. It is substantially on this sentence that the charge is based under an ancient blue law of Massachusetts, never repealed, which in 1640 carried the penalty of death. The penalty has long since been modified. The ancient statute was resurrected in February, 1926, for the arrest and trial of Anthony Bimba, labour leader, in a shoe strike in Brockton.

Bimba's trial got nation-wide publicity. He was acquitted of blasphemy, but found guilty of "seditious utterances."

It was only because Dr. Kallen happened to be in Boston after the death of his mother that he was asked to speak at the memorial meeting. In New York he is connected with a summer school.

The meeting was attended by about 2,000 and, unlike Sacco-Vanzetti meetings of a year ago, there was no demonstration and no sign of trouble. Police took notes of speeches which appeared out of the ordinary. Their notes were later submitted to superior officers and it was decided to put the matter up to the courts.

Dr. Kallen was born in Germany of Jewish parents and was brought to America in 1887 when five years old. He received his A.B. degree from Harvard in 1903, after which he attended Princeton and Oxford. He got his Doctor of Philosophy degree from Harvard in 1908 and then became a lecturer there. From Harvard he went to several other colleges as an instructor, later devoting his time mostly to writing. Among his best known works are "William James and Henri Bergson," "Creative Intelligence" (with John Dewey and others), "The Book of Job as a Greek Tragedy," "Zionism and World Politics" and others. He has contributed much to various publications, among them the Menorah Journal.

JEWISH COMMUNAL ELECTIONS IN VILNA

Of the twenty-five members elected to the Jewish Communal Council of Vilna, five are Zionists, two are members of the Agudas Israel, three belong to the Socialist group, three are non-party orthodox candidates, and one represents the Jewish People's Party. The other eleven seats are distributed among the various economic groups, as merchants, artisans and professional men, many of whom are also Zionists. It is estimated that the Zionists and their supporters will command a majority in the Council.

Joseph Stroock, of New York City has presented to the Hebrew Union College, a magnificent oil painting, called "A Jewish Scholar Studying the Talmud" by Hermann Struck, noted German painter and etcher. Hermann Struck is a cousin to the donor.

"Sometimes when people ramarks are,
I tell them without rancour
That for what it cost me to be free
I might have had an anchor."

Following is a letter from a Gentile reader of THE REVIEW: "I read the editorial by A.B.B. in your paper asking why the Jew is persecuted at summer resorts. I have a great many Jews among my friends and I think perhaps the nail would be hit more on the head if, instead of criticizing the Jew in a destructive manner to criticize some of them in a constructive manner.

"At a summer resort, which I have been going to, we have a number of Jewish families who, like ordinary Gentile people, mind their business, go to bed at a reasonable hour, and do not make noise; but we also have close to them two families who have had as many as fifty visitors each on a Sunday. Sunday is the day on which the ordinary Gentile likes to take it easy, but how can this be done when fifty people or so are howling outside of your window, dancing, playing ball and the radio? They should have respect for other people. Only this week we found a number of the same family who were in bathing without clothes on--we mean by this well-developed young girls, and it meant that the Gentile people had to take their children away from the beach, the Jewish people thinking it was perfectly in order for girls of sixteen and seventeen to go in bathing without their suits where there is a great number of people looking on. This disturbing element is where the trouble lies, and if your people would realize that they must, when living in Rome do as the Romans do, and therefore on our Sunday be reasonably quiet, not disturbing people who would like to have a rest during the afternoon, not parking their cars on everyone's lawn or side drive throughout the district, and even now (in this particular case I mention) a perfectly good beach has gone to waste just because of the carelessness of one or two families. I think the families who are welcome and who do maintain themselves in the proper sphere would be wise to point out where the certain element of Jewish people are spoiling the good number of summer resorts. This is through thoughtlessness more than anything else I am sure.

"This is only an opinion and if you could pick out the proper points and publish same with the same publicity as you gave the 'Persecution of the Jew,' I am sure that he would probably take a hint and in that way go a long way toward increasing the goodwill, particularly in the summer resorts as mentioned."

The above letter is well worth your consideration. It is written in kindly, tolerant spirit with the earnest purpose of suggesting to some Jews that they suffer from discrimination because of the loud and improper conduct of ill-bred co-religionists. There are all classes of Jews as there are all classes of other people and those of the better class will find it easy to agree with the letter-writer in the main. However, strong exception must be made to his statement that "Jewish people think it perfectly in order for girls of sixteen and seventeen to go in bathing without their suits where there is a great number of people looking on." In fact complaints against just such deportment have reached this office from Jews themselves. It would be conservative to say that most Jews, as most non-Jews, would be disgusted and shocked at people who have no better sense of the fitness of things than to go in bathing nude on a public beach. It might be added that most of them are sickened at how small a one-piece bathing suit can be bought and how unaesthetic the result can be when it is stretched unmercifully. The people who offend the eyes and ears of the innocent bystander in the manner described by the letter-writer are the same who ruin any style or custom by carrying it to an extreme that lies beyond the confines of what is good taste, fitting and perhaps decent. They are sometimes Jews, sometimes not.

The better-class Jew does not condone the noise that many of his less-evolved brethren cause by radio and what-not any more than he blames all Gentiles for the behaviour of some. This column many times has urged against what the letter-writer so gently calls "thoughtlessness." As to disturbing Gentiles on Sunday it is a pity that Jews ever do this. Gentiles are known among Jews as being highly respectful of Jewish customs and ceremonies when they know anything about such. All the letter-writer asks is that Jews be "reasonably quiet" on Sunday, the Gentile Sabbath and day of rest. Many Jews will join him in asking that Jews be reasonably quiet not only on Sunday but on every other day of the week. Also Gentiles and the rest of the world as well!

Thousands of little Jewish children will be interested to know that Jews and Christians are going to hold a conference soon on the subject of proselytizing. Someone always taking the joy out of life. The conference sessions, which are to take place soon in New York (a city where trouble is always being thought up), will have to do with "attempts to convert Jewish children to Christianity by the use of all manner of social inducements." The ones who are worried about it belong to the Executive Board of the National Conference of Jews and Christians and they decided recently to call the conference. They think it "unfair and conducive to the development of much bad feeling," for the Christians to try to convert the Jewish children by all manner of social inducements. This is enough to make many Jewish children impatient. "All manner of social inducements" includes Christmas trees, a bag of candy, an orange each and at least one toy annually. This means fun. You don't have to be converted or stay converted. You just enjoy the tree and take the presents home, eat some of them, gradually break the rest, and that's all there is to it. It remains for grown-ups to hunt up things "unfair and conducive to the development of much bad feeling." What is much bad feeling between friends? No one but a grown-up would grow bitter over a missionary with the New Testament in one hand and milk chocolate or Eskimo pie in the other. And why should they worry, really? Did they ever see a "social inducement" Jewish convert among children? Only a grown-up would ever fall for that stuff for long!

Social Life in 1906— Do You Remember?—

Born to Mr. and Mrs. L. Fraid, of Gananoque, a son; to Mr. and Mrs. A. Klopot, of Boston, a son; to Mr. and Mrs. Levinoff, of Toronto, a son; to Mr. and Mrs. A. Marks, University Street, Montreal, a son. Miss Miriam Bernstein read a paper on "Emma Lazarus" at a meeting of the Young People's Society of Shaar Hashomayim. Dr. Norman Viner read one of his celebrated original poems and Henry Levy gave a humourous recitation. Leon Goldman gave a vote of thanks to those on the programme and A. H. Vineberg seconded it. The bar-mitzvah took place of Nathan, youngest son of Louis Holstein; of the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Gross, and of Max Malerich, son of Mrs. Malerich, 27 St. Monique Street, who sang the Haphtorah in a sweet alto voice. The Board of Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue waited on Fischel Ship at his home and presented him with an illuminated address. Officers of the children's society of the congregation were: Harry Levinson, president; Herman Warshafsky, parnass; Lyon Levinson, secretary; council, Harry Vineberg, Charles Harris, A. Fineberg. Twenty little girls joined the Jewish Sisterhood of the synagogue and elected Leba Livingstone, president; Sadie Friedman, vice-president; Rose Matts, secretary; Frances Vineberg, treasurer; Libbie Cohen, R. Solomon, Rachel Vineberg, council; H. Freeman, honourary president. Mrs. Marcus Roman was in New York. Mrs. D. Lazarus was in New York. Mrs. Joseph Mendles, of Perth, Ont., visited her father, S. Roman, St. Joseph Boulevard. Miss Adelstein, Mitchison Avenue, gave a tea. The table was decorated with American Beauty roses. The engagement was announced of Miss Minnie Adilman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Adilman, of Winnipeg, and Philip Presner, of Montreal. I. S. Goldstein's father died in Rumania. Mrs. I. Vineberg went to New York for the golden wedding of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. Roth. She was accompanied by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Harry Vineberg. Born, in Toronto, to Mr. and Mrs. A. Rosenthal, a daughter; to Mr. and Mrs. J. Friedman, a daughter. Mrs. D. Eisner left for New York. Lewis Vineberg was in Cobalt. Dr. Margolese returned from England. Miss H. Tannenbaum went to New York. Miss B. Samuels was in New York. Mrs. A. M. Bilsky was in Ottawa. Mrs. M. Hirsch was in New York.

JEWS IN GREEK ELECTIONS

The institution by the Greek Government of a separate electoral college for the Jews of Salonika has aroused great indignation in the Jewish community, which has addressed two letters of protest to Mr. Venizelos. However, the protests have only elicited expressions of goodwill towards the Jews and assertions of the Government's care for their well-being.

In spite of the Jewish dislike of the measure, therefore, it has been decided to contest the two Jewish seats which have been allotted, and seven Jewish candidates are in the field. The Zionist candidates are Deputy Bessantchi and Mr. Matalon (the President of the local Bnai Brith Lodge). The Jewish deputies for Salonika in the old chamber were Mr. Bessantchi, a Zionist Republican, and Mr. Isaac Shaki, a Monarchist member of the Artisans' Group.

Oceans of Hot Water from Every Faucet

One Afternoon

They had been trying to play cricket all the afternoon on the cow pasture behind Blue House farm. It had been a poor game from the start, and had ended in something like a fight. Joseph had begun the trouble: as they climbed the gate and swung their legs clear of the nettle patch, he had said: "Let's play without bothering about rules." "That means that you bat all the time and I never get a chance," objected Hannah. "No, it doesn't; you do what you like and I'll do what I like." "But we must take turns." "Taking turns is keeping rules, silly; we aren't going to bother about them."

Then, just as they were rolling over and over, Joseph with his hand fixed in Hannah's hair, and Hannah trying to scratch his face, a very tall stranger came through the kissgate at the further end of the meadow and walked towards them. He didn't look like one of the farm men, his clothes were so different, and yet he reminded the children of something they had seen before. He wore a brown cloak, very long, with wide sleeves like a girl's dressing gown, only he didn't look a bit like a girl. On his head was a piece of scarlet cloth tied round with rope. "Won't the Alderney cow be cross if it sees him," thought Hannah.

By the time he reached the children, they were sitting up flushed and cross, with clovers sticking in their hair. "What is it that you do?" he said in a grave voice. "Know you not that the Law says 'Thou shalt not take vengeance.'" "What law?" asked Joseph. "Why that's in the Bible," said Hannah; "I learnt it last week." The stranger looked puzzled. "I know not that word Bible," he said. "I spoke of the Law of the Lord Moses." "Well," said Hannah, in her best company manner, "we don't often quarrel, not really quarrel, I mean, but it was like this." "Declare it unto me," said the stranger, just as if he were speaking to a whole room of grownups. And he smoothed out his cloak behind him and settled down slowly on the soft turf exactly like old Jenkins the Shepherd. "You see, Joseph wanted to play without rules." "Just for a change, you know," said Joseph hastily. The stranger smiled. "You cannot do aught without rules," he said; "it is impossible. Men tried it in the Lord Moses's time over and over again, and it led always to one thing, this." He pulled aside his cloak and they caught a glimpse of a dull steel knife in a leather sheaf.

"Tell us," said Joseph; he loved stories. "There is little to tell. When we had left Egypt we lived with the sheep. It was a goodly life after the slavery in the cities. Sometimes we journeyed for days. The great ones and the Lord Moses in front of all searching out the way, then came the fire carriers with their smoking pots ready to kindle the fire at the halting place, the asses with the tents and the women, we shepherds driving the flocks, and the guard behind lest robbers should fall upon us. At other times we found water and much grass and stayed in one spot for two moons or three, doing little save watch the sheep and rest on our backs in the sun. When a man has been a slave he feels he can never rest enough to get the weariness out of his bones." "It must have been nice," said Hannah. "It was pleasant, maiden, but it did not much advance the work." "What work?" asked Joseph; "I thought you had nothing to do but look after the sheep." "Nay," said the stranger, rising to his feet, "I speak of the task of Israel. You are Hebrew children, are you not?" "We're Jewish," said Hannah, "if that's what you mean." "It is the same. Then you understand that of which I speak. Had it not been for the Lord Moses we were like to have forgotten it at that time, some there were who did forget." "What did he do to make you remember?" asked Joseph. "The Lord Moses? He sat at the tent door in the midst of the camp and men came unto him from all the camp saying, such a one has taken my ass, such a one struck me, and ever he gave judgment between them." "Oh, you mean the Law," said Hannah. "Yes, but the Law is not only in such things, it tells a man how to buy and sell with justice, but it also tells him other things, that is how it helps in the task."

The Alderney cow had strolled up and was nozzling the stranger's hand; it didn't seem to mind the red head cloth. "Thou shalt not muzzle the ox when he treadeth out the corn," said the stranger softly,, as if he were remembering something. Then, with his hand on the cow's neck he started walking slowly across the field. At the gate he turned. "A joyous Pentecost to you," he called. "Why it's Pentecost to-morrow," said Hannah; "I had forgotten." And while they were talking about it the stranger must have gone, for when they looked round he was out of sight.—Jewish Religious Union Bulletin.

Does It Pay to Die?

A prominent synagogue member died and was given a public funeral. All went well until the cortege reached the cemetery. Then a great argument started between the friends and enemies of the deceased as to where he should be buried. Some contended that it should be in a conspicuous place, while the others demanded that the grave should be in an obscure spot. The dispute raged on until it almost precipitated several fist fights.

Among the group was an old-timer with a rather philosophical turn of mind. As the argument gained momentum, he turned to a fellow standing near him and remarked:

"Well, I ask you, Abraham, does it pay to die?"

and modesty were praised by all around us from Ontario's prime minister and other civic leaders down to the smallest urchin who had edged his way to the platform to get near the dignitaries.

We wondered whether the crowd appreciated what Fanny symbolized. She was there a Jewess, but also a Canadian. In her own words of thanks she said "I was proud to help bring honour to Canada." She brought honour to Canada and in that she was a symbol of the Jewish youth who too will bring honour to Canada. Thousands of them are now being trained in the public schools and they will contribute to the Canadian national life. The young Jew is beginning to arrive in Canada. Fanny is the van of a host whose spiritual, intellectual and physical capacities will enhance the glory of Canada. Jews who love Canada will recognize that their greatest patriotic service will be to cultivate the physical, intellectual and spiritual capacities of Canada's Jewish youth.

The gymnasium for the Jewish Girls' Clubs going up on St. George Street made possible through the generosity of three individuals will be a sermon in stones which we commend to some of our rich Canadian co-religionists.

PROTECT US FROM OUR FRIENDS!

We saw in one of our local newspapers headlines of a great tribute paid to the Jews in a very orthodox house of worship by a pious minister. We were thrilled and happy as we commenced reading his remarks. We felt that our goodwill crusade has despite those who cavilled at it borne ripe fruit. In this centre of religious reaction praise for the Jew! But our joy was short lived, the tribute to the Jew proved to be a Grecian horse. The peroration of the address was a plea for funds for the Jewish mission led by the ex-Jew the Rev. Moishe so and so.

"Did you use any soft water?"

At your summer cottage did you notice how easy it was to wash clothes, and how beautifully white everything turned out? If you did you will appreciate the reason why nothing but the softest water is used in this laundry. We offer you five different kinds of family wash service, all moderately priced. A phone talk with one of our young ladies will give you more detailed information.

GETS TEN FIRSTS

Miss Ethel Cutler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Cutler, 28 Robert Street, aged sixteen, of Harbord Collegiate, won ten firsts this year at the upper school examinations. Last year she won eleven firsts in the middle school examinations.

STUDENTS WIN HONOURS

The students of Toronto collegiates who secured high honours in the recent middle school matriculation examinations, were:

Jeanette Rotstein, of Harbord, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Rotstein, 105 Manning Avenue, who won seven first-class honours; David Coldofsky, of Harbord, son of Mrs. S. Coldofsky, Spadina Avenue, ten first-class honours out of ten subjects; Sara Saretsky, 1564 Queen Street East, of Riverdale, gained nine first-class honours.

Professor Albert A. Michelson, Nobel prize-winner and physicist of the University of Chicago, will, when thoroughly recovered from his recent illness, leave for the Mount Wilson Observatory, Pasadena, Cal., to carry out two experiments, one of which will be a measurement of the speed of light. The 75-year old scientist will also conclude his repetition of the Michelson-Morley experiment on which the Einstein theory is based. Although Professor Michelson is satisfied with the results obtained in 1926 in his light experiments, the measurement being 186,284 miles a second, he will perform the task again "for his own amusement."

alien. To the former are ascribed all conceivable virtues; to the latter all thinkable and unthinkable vices. To the former are due the respect and consideration which are the right of civilized human beings. The latter are merely animals unworthy even of the treatment which in many cases is accorded to quadrupeds.

The brilliant chief constables who would jump all immigrants in the class of criminals show a remarkable aptitude for wide generalization. One may wonder whether they are as broad and sweeping in arriving at conclusions when handling cases that require careful analysis.

The transfer tax appraisal of the estate of Miss Isabella Freedman, of New York, placed the value at $620,340 gross and $492,993 net. Miss Freedman, who died on May 25, 1927, left the greater part of her estate to her brother, Daniel B. Freedman, of the Hotel Plaza, most of it in trust during his lifetime. At the death of Mr. Freedman, the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies will receive $75,000. Miss Freedman also created a $25,000 fund to give vacations to Jewish working girls.

Dr. Angelo di Nola, a Jew, who held one of the principal posts in the Ministry of Trade, was appointed director general of the Banking Institute for Land Credits in Italy. He is also the Italian representative on the economic committee of the League of Nations.

JEWISH BOYS' CLUB

West End Club, the Warroc Juvenile baseball juvenile team of the Jewish Boys' Club have just completed their season. They nosed out the strong Rotakin team in a series of three games. This gave them the right to represent the Ki-Y League in the city playoffs. In the first game, they defeated St. Paul's, of the Inter-Church League, by a score of 6—3. J. Starkman pitched good baseball. In the next game against Manning A.C., J. Brenstein's pitching failed to stop Manning A.C.'s heavy hitters and J. Starkman's fine twirling came too late to stem the tide. Manning A.C. defeated the team from the Jewish Boys' Club by the score of 17—9. Warroc team: S. Kronis, C. Starkman; and Bernstein, pitcher; M. Pomer, first base; B. Abramovitz, second base; S. Slatkin, third base; S. Cohen, short-stop; S. Jaurard, Rotish, Super and Balakofsky, outfield. Jewish Boys' Club lost the final for the Bantam City Championship on Friday evening, by a score of 14—3 to Manning A.C. In the first two innings, Manning scored five in the first and five in the second. Stein of the J.B.C., pitched brilliantly. Joe Zoberman also made several hard catches in the outfield, while Joe Pustil caught a good game behind the bat. The J.B.C. made a triple play in the sixth inning. Batteries for Manning: Starkman and Halperstadt; J.B.C., Stein and Pustil. J.B.C. lineup: A. Wise, second base; F. Stein, pitcher; L. Rubenstein, short-stop; M. Tanzer, center field; H. Freedman, left field; J. Pustil, catcher; H. Price right field.

INVENTS INGENIOUS DOOR

After two years' experiment, Harry Ginsberg, 121 Palmerston Avenue, Toronto, has invented a revolving door by which he hopes to foil bank robbers. Mr. Ginsberg demonstrated his invention in Inspector of Detectives Guthrie's office, before Chief of Police Draper, police officers and newspapermen. In appearance the door is similar to the ordinary revolving appliance universally used in banks, office buildings and other places, save for the fact that each leaf of the door is equipped with a special kind of lock, which automatically fastens the moment a knob is touched in certain parts of the building in which it is installed. The impulse used in locking the doors is not electrical, but is some arrangement of Mr. Ginsberg's own design. In addition to locking the door, pressure on the knob operates a gong, which, while alarming persons in the vicinity of depredation with its loud ringing, also notifies the police in the nearest police station. Mr. Ginsberg claims that his invention is fool-proof, simple and inexpensive. He told Chief Draper that he would install a full-sized door for about $500. The idea is to keep the robbers from leaving the bank premises once they are in.

Chief Draper and Inspector Guthrie, while impressed with the ingenuity and simplicity of the device, were reluctant to give their approval until they had seen a full-sized door in operation. They suggested that Mr. Ginsberg take his invention to one of the banks and there install it, so that they might see how it worked in an emergency. Mr. Ginsberg stated that everyone in the bank, when the door was locked, would have to stay there until released by some person outside.

BASEBALL NEWS

In the games played in the Jewish Community League last week, Hasmonians lost their last game of the year to the Leonards by the score of 6 to 1. Glasner allowing the losers only three hits. Bill Sniderman and Max Sniderman were the stars for the winners. On Tuesday night, Bnai Brith had Herzls beaten 6 to 5, in the last of the fifth with Herzls having two out, when the lights came on, to stop the game, as a result of which, the game is to be replayed. In Wednesday's game between the two outstanding teams of the league, Herzls and Leonards the former were leading by 3 to nil in the third inning, when the Leonard manager called his team off the field, as a result of a misunderstanding, Dunkleman awarding the game to Herzls, by 9 to 0, when Leonards refused to get back into the game. Leonards and Herzls were tied for first as a result of the awarded game. On the Monday just passed, the executive met to decide the future games. Only two games were left to be played, Bnai Brith having to meet both Herzls and Leonards. In the event of the former winning both their games, there would be five games tied for first place, while one loss, would put which ever team beat them in first place with three teams tied for third. Should Bnai Brith lose the first game against Leonards, it was decided to close the league with Herzls and Leonards tied for first and Hasmonians and Tuex tied for third, in which case two sudden death games to decide first and third place would have to be played. On Monday night, Bnai Brith lost to Leonards by 8 to 1. Glasner giving Bnai Brith only six scattered hits. "Tony" Perlstone was the star of the game with his fine play at shortstop, while "Lefty" Glasner also led the hitters with three hits. It was announced that Tuex and Hasmonians would play in a sudden death game on Tuesday, the following night, with Leonards and Herzls meeting on Wednesday, to decide first place. The winner of the first named game will play the loser of the last named game in a two out of three series to see which team will play the leaders for the Leon Scher trophy, emblematic of the championship of the Jewish Community Softball League. The results of the games played follow:

Monday, August 20—

Leonards	0	0	1	0	0	2	0	0	3	6	10	4

Batteries: Glasner and Caplan; Wahl and Donn.

Tuesday, August 21—

						R.	H.	E.
Bnai Brith	2	0	0	1	3	6	6	1
Herzls	4	1	0	0	x	5	9	0

Batteries: Griesman, Altman and Bockner; Bienbaum, Wilson and H. Stone. Game to be replayed.

Wednesday, August 22—

				R.	H.	E.
Herzls	3	0	0	3	6	0
Leonards	0	0	0	0	1	2

Batteries: Wilson and M. Stone; Glasner and Caplan. Game awarded to Herzls, 9 to 0.

Monday, August 27—

									R.	H.	E.
Bnai Brith	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	1	6	4
Leonards	0	0	0	4	0	x	2	1	1	8	9	1

Batteries: Griesman and Bockner; Glasner and Posen.

The following is the tentative schedule for the week of Tuesday September 4: Tuesday, September 4, winner of Tuex vs. Hasmonians vs. loser of the Herzl vs. Leonard game. Wednesday, September 5, Sunnysides vs. Judaean Benvolent. Thursday, September 6, return game of Tuesday, August 4.

"The Return of the Natural"
Expressed in the Lovely Lines of Pember's

Permanent Wave

Soft, rippling waves of lovely hair that is the result of PEMBER'S years of investigation as to the best methods of Permanent Waving. Since he first introduced Permanent Waving into Canada in 1905, there has been a steady development toward that natural wave which alone answers to the mode of to-day.

Of Interest to Exhibition Visitors

The fact that PEMBER'S Realistic Wave received three prizes at the International Exhibition in Paris, France, speaks for itself. The new Frigilene Wave—also very popular—particularly recommends itself to soft, fine hair.

NORTHERN ONTARIO CANADA

Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, minerals, water, power, fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it and in return will give health, comfort and prosperity.

What settlers say of the soil, climate farming and forest life, is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honourable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a title to these rich agricultural lands are also given.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. A. Feldman, 99 St. Patrick Street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Anne, to Mac Tishman.

MARRIAGES

Mitchnich—Rodney

At the home of the bride's grandparents, 769 King Street West, the wedding took place Sunday, August 19, of Betty Rodney, oldest grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. A. Strassberg, to Louis, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Mitchnich, of Hamilton. The bride was given away by her grandparents and wore a gown of white satin and French tulle, caught up in soft folds with orange blossoms and seed pearls. Her veil was arranged in a cap effect with orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses and lilies-of-the-vally. Miss Marjorie Rodney, her sister, was bridesmaid, in a period gown of orchid georgette with gold Venetian lace. Her corsage was of roses and baby's breath. Dave Mitchnich, brother of the groom, was best man. Rabbi Gordon officiated, assisted by Cantor Barton. Dinner was served to 150 guests. Fred Harrington, of Hamilton, was toast-master. A reception was held in honour of the couple by Mrs. M. Miller, aunt of the bride, in a gown of black crepe romain set with crystals. The couple left on an extended honeymoon by motor, the bride travelling in a sport ensemble of brown with hat to match. She also wore the gift of the groom, a rope of pearls. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was an onyx ring set with a diamond, and to the best man, gold cuff links. The couple will live in Hamilton. The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. M. Mitchnich, of Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. B. Mitchnich, Dave Mitchnich, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Carpel and daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. M. Loomer, of Hamilton, and Mrs. S. Shafer, of Cleveland.

Markus—Kamin

The wedding was solemnized at the University Synagogue Sunday, August 26, when Anna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Kamin, Borden Street, became the bride of Lewis Markus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Markus, Indian Grove. Rabbi Sachs officiating. Miss Pearl Goodfellow played the wedding march. The synagogue was decorated with palms and ferns. The bride was gowned in transparent velvet, the train lined with pale yellow chiffon. Her veil was arranged in coronet fashion with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of Butterfly roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Mrs. J. Levinter was matron of honour, wearing powder blue chiffon dress with mohair hat to match. Her bouquet was of Premier roses, flowers of the season and lilies-of-the-valley. Misses Etta Kamin and Jennie Markus were bridesmaids, and wore period gowns of green and pink taffeta with mohair hats to match and carried nosegays of Premier roses, flowers of the season and lilies-of-the-valley. Evelyn Levinter was the flower girl, in a dress of pale green georgette trimmed with pink petals. The groom was attended by his brother, Ralph Markus, of Detroit. The ushers were Mark Markus and Jacob Levinter. During the ceremony Miss Etta Kamin, sister of the bride, sang "Until." Later a reception was held in the adjoining hall of the synagogue where the bridal party received the guests. From out-of-town, were: Mr. and Mrs. B. Silverstein and family, of Chicago; Miss Beth Mainster, of New York; Mrs. J. Pinkerton, of Boston, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. I. Kamin and son, Milton; Miss Sally Bloom, of Lima, Ohio; and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Markus, of Detroit. The couple left on an extended trip to Atlantic City, New York and Boston. Going away the bride wore a gown of dark brown satin with a hat to match and a silver fox fur.

Father Gives Life Shielding Children from Flames

Trapped by flames which started in a closet on the ground floor and went roaring up two flights of stairs—hemmed in at the rear of the building and having no means of escape by the front—choked and blinded by smoke—father, mother and one child were burned to death in the twinkling of an eye, and three other children were so seriously burned that one died in hospital a few hours later, Tuesday morning.

Joseph Klianman died as a hero would. His dead body was found shielding his two boys, who were still living, but gasping painfully for breath.

After the close of business Monday night, Mr. and Mrs. Klianman, leaving the younger children in care of Sadie, aged fifteen, had gone to the home of Mrs. Klianman's parents, on Elm Street, where they made arrangements with other members of the family, to go to the Exhibition. Klianmans returned home about 12.30.

Scene of the tragedy, a three-storey brick building, owned and occupied by Joseph Klianman at 203 Queen Street East. On the ground floor is a ladies' wear store, of which Mr. Klianman was proprietor. Second floor was partly a living, partly a sleeping apartment. On the third floor was a workroom at the rear and two bedrooms at the front.

Parents and three of the children slept in these two upper rooms. One member of the family, believed to be the daughter, Sadie, slept in the bedroom on the second floor. At 3.45 a.m., all were sound asleep. Suddenly fire broke out down below. Firemen believe it was caused by defective wiring: someone said afterwards that a wire in the closet—which was used as an office—had been sparking previously.

Two stairways acted as a flue to draw the flames upward. Within a few minutes the entire interior of the building was a mass of flames. Dry woodwork burned and crackled like tinder. Sheets of fire shot outward and upward through every window, causing a reflection which quickly attracted the attention of passersby.

A taxi driver, who was passing at the time, rushed to pull a box at Queen and Jarvis Streets. The box failed to function. A man rushed to another box nearer Sherbourne Street, and turned in an alarm which brought local fire sections.

From a top front window a young girl, Sadie Klianman, was leaning, burned and gasping. She had apparently rushed upstairs from her bedroom below.

There was a roof in the rear to which the family might have jumped to safety, but they were cut off from this by the flames from the burning staircase. Beside a dresser at the west side of the room, lay the mother, dead. Her child, Sidney, lay close by, nearer the window—dead also. Close to the north wall, between the two windows, almost touching the bed on which he had been sleeping, was the father. He, too, was dead. He was on his knees, with body bent forward until his head touched the floor. He was scorched and charred almost beyond recognition. When the body was moved, two children were discovered beneath it, sheltered like birds under a mothering wing. They were Morris and Benny. They were still alive. Four grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Klianman, 58 Centre Avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. K. Greenbaum, Elm and McCaul Streets were roused from sleep before five a.m. Full extent of the tragedy was not revealed at the time. This was learned by the old people only after they had gone to the hospital and to the morgue. In their homes sorrow was so intense that two policemen found their services necessary to quiet the mourners.

N. Greenbaum, 42 Nassau Street, is a brother of Mrs. Klianman, as is P. Greenbaum, of 15 Cecil Street. The latter's family were to have gone out to the Exhibition with the Klianmans to-day.

Actual loss by fire in the Klianman building was comparatively small, being $1,500 on building and $2,500 to contents. Firemen remarked that the building was not equipped with fire escapes.

Premises next door west, occupied by the Alltag Machine and Tool Co., were undamaged.

Seven occupants of adjoining premises to the east, No. 205, occupied by S. Golden, grocer, Queen Street, had to flee in their night attire from the flames and smoke which in part invaded their section of the building.

OBITUARY

THREE BIG LITTLE WORDS

HAPPY NEW YEAR

AT the advent once more of the High Holidays comes the beautiful Jewish custom of sending New Year's Greetings to one's relatives and friends. This custom, originated by the Jewish people, is thousands of years old. In ancient Judaea the town crier would carry the message to the dwellers in the villages and the cities, to the country-folk gathered in the towns to celebrate Rosh Hashonah in the traditional manner.

With the flight of time the honourable profession of town crier disappeared. But the deeply rooted custom among the Jewish people of sending "L'Shono Tovu" greetings remained. And there gradually grew up a custom of sending personal greeting cards through the mails. Many of these cards were works of art, and are treasured as heirlooms to this day.

When cities and towns were small, and one knew one's friends intimately, this system worked perfectly. But as cities grew, and one's circle of friends extended, it was inevitable that in the hurly-burly of sending hundreds of cards, some cherished friends were overlooked. The endless explanations and heart-burnings caused the development of a new and better system.

Extend your NEW YEAR GREETINGS to your relatives and friends through the SPECIAL NEW YEAR EDITION of THE CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW to be issued Friday, September 14th.

Fill out the coupon and return to THE CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW, 288 St. James Street, Montreal, or 319 Bay Street, Toronto, before Wednesday, September 5th.

The charge for these announcements is $2, payable in advance.
